Shopping

Hidden Gem

The Department of the Interior may seem an unlikely destination for visitors, but those who venture inside are rewarded with a pleasant surprise. Tucked behind an unassuming doorway, The Indian Craft Shop (page 12) has been connecting shoppers with handmade treasures by emerging and established Native American artists since 1938.

Under murals by Allan Houser and Gerald Nailor, hand-woven baskets, beaded textiles, jewelry, fetish carvings and colorful katsinas from more than 45 tribal groups beckon to casual and serious collectors alike.

The shop also offers large-scale sculptures in the courtyard outside and hosts occasional special events with artists. But you won't get a peek without a photo I.D. It is, after all, a government building.—AKD
